Key Takeaways

Dongya is a manufacturer and supplier of fiberglass-reinforced cable trays, offering durable, corrosion-resistant solutions for industrial and commercial cable management. Dongya specializes in fiberglass-reinforced plastic (FRP) cable trays, which are lightweight, corrosion-resistant, and designed for long-term durability in harsh environments such as chemical plants, petroleum facilities, power stations, and telecommunications infrastructure. Their cable trays are engineered to withstand high temperatures, humidity, and chemical exposure, providing anti-aging performance, impact resistance, and a lifespan exceeding 30 years.

The trays are maintenance-free, do not rust, and require no painting or daily care, making them ideal for demanding industrial applications.

Product Features

Material: Fiberglass-reinforced plastic (FRP) for high strength-to-weight ratio and corrosion resistance. Types: Ladder trays, troughs, and channel cable trays with various resin systems and configurations. Performance: High bending and stretching strength (≥600 Pa), anti-fatigue capacity approximately 50 times greater than steel, and excellent weather resistance.

Applications: Widely used in petroleum, chemical, power, light industry, television, and telecommunications sectors.

Sourcing and Procurement

Dongya products are available through B2B marketplaces and distributors, allowing direct contact with manufacturers for bulk orders or custom solutions. They provide custom pultrusions and complete cable management support systems to meet project-specific requirements. Local distributors, such as those in Indonesia, offer FRP cable tray covers and ladder systems with competitive pricing and delivery options.

Advantages of Dongya FRP Cable Trays

Corrosion and chemical resistance ensures longevity in harsh environments. Lightweight design reduces installation effort and structural load. Maintenance-free operation lowers long-term costs.

Customizable configurations allow adaptation to specific project needs. For businesses seeking durable, high-performance fiberglass cable trays, Dongya provides a reliable source manufacturer with a proven track record in industrial cable management solutions.
