Eight-core fiber optic cable model and specifications

Overview

8 Core Fiber Optic Cable Guide for Project Expansion Need 8 core fiber optic cable for a B2B project or repeat supply?

Send application, key specifications.

Key Takeaways

8-core fiber optic cables are available in multimode (OM3/OM5) and single-mode types, with loose tube or single-tube construction, armored or non-armored designs, LSZH or steel jackets, and support high-speed data transmission for LAN, WAN, and industrial applications.

Core and Fiber Type

Number of cores: 8Fiber types: OM3 or OM5 multimode (50/125 µm) for high-bandwidth applications; single-mode options are also available for long-distance transmission. Fibre construction: Loose tube or single-tube design, often gel-filled for moisture protection. Color coding: Standardized per TIA-598-C for easy identification.

Cable Construction

Outer sheath materials: LSZH (Low Smoke Zero Halogen) for indoor/outdoor use, or steel armored for industrial protection. Outer diameter: Typically around 6 mm for loose tube multimode cables. Rodent resistance: Some models include rodent-resistant features.

Flame retardant: Compliant with IEC 60332-1-2; low smoke and Euroclass ratings such as B2ca, s1a, d0, a1. Tensile strength: High tensile strength for durability and installation in ducts or trays.

Performance Parameters

Attenuation: For OM3/OM5 fibers, typical attenuation is ≤2. 5 dB/km at 850 nm. Bending radius: Minimum bending radius around 15 mm for 850 nm fibers, with bending loss
