Key Takeaways

Smart lighting distribution boxes in Australia typically range from AUD 150 to AUD 800, depending on features, capacity, and brand.

Overview

Smart lighting distribution boxes, also known as control boxes or switchboards, are used to manage and automate lighting circuits in residential, commercial, or industrial settings. Prices vary based on the number of circuits, integration with smart home systems, and additional features like USB charging ports, circuit protection, and pre-wired setups. Typical Price RangesEntry-level DIY units: AUD 150–300 These are compact, pre-wired boxes suitable for small residential projects or off-grid setups.

They often include multiple 12V/24V outputs, USB ports, and basic circuit protection. Mid-range smart control boxes: AUD 300–500 Designed for larger homes or commercial spaces, these units may integrate with smart home platforms, offer multiple circuit outputs, and include advanced protection features like auto-reset breakers and fused connectors. Professional-grade or modular switchboards: AUD 500–800+ These are modular systems from suppliers like IPD Australia, featuring compliance with Australian standards, high-capacity circuits, and compatibility with industrial or commercial smart lighting networks.
