Key Takeaways

Cable hole covers for distribution boxes typically range from £1. 50 to £20 per unit, depending on size, material, and supplier.

Overview of Options

Single Cable Entry Covers

Designed for a single cable, usually made of plastic for indoor use. Example: Toolstation offers a white internal hole tidy for a single cable, providing a neat finish for wall installations. Prices for these types are generally around £1.

50–£3 per unit.

Modular or Bar/

Cable Gap Covers

Used for larger distribution boards or multiple cable entries. These are often manufactured to order and may require a minimum order quantity (e.g., 20 units). Prices vary significantly depending on size and customization, typically £10–£20 per unit.

Heavy-

Duty or Outdoor CoversFor underground or outdoor distribution boxes, covers are made from polyethylene or fiberglass-reinforced polymer. Features include non-slip surfaces, knock-out holes for easy access, and high load-bearing capacity. These are more expensive due to durability and safety features, with prices ranging from £15–£50 or more per cover, depending on size and supplier.

Factors Affecting Price

Material: Plastic covers are cheaper, while reinforced polymer or metal covers cost more. Size and Number of Cable Holes: Larger covers or those accommodating multiple cables are more expensive. Customization: Made-to-order covers or modular designs increase cost.

Supplier and Quantity: Bulk orders may reduce per-unit cost, while specialty suppliers may charge more for small quantities. For most indoor distribution boxes, a standard plastic cable hole cover is the most cost-effective solution, while outdoor or heavy-duty covers are recommended for safety and durability in high-traffic or exposed areas.
